“ We met Mike Buckman about 10 years ago. He was like a big brother to me. In November 2011 our house caught on fire so Mike cleared his parents house out so we'd have a place to stay until our house was fixed. He was a God fearing man. Our hearts and prayers go out to his family in this time of sorrow. But I know that Mike is looking down from heaven watching over all of us. R.I.P. Mike we'll miss you.

“ My dad was always fearless. He could slay dragons. At least that's the way it seemed to me. That is until the day I realized the poor guy was completely creeped out by spiders. I'll always remember that day. We were in the basement and there was a small spider on the window. My dad about lost his mind! He yelled at me to kill it while scrambling for a spray can of....(I cant remember what it was maybe glass claner) as I stood there with my mouth hanging open. He proceeded to spray the mystery can onto the spider leaving about 2 inches of foam built up on the window. Then looked at me and smiled so big and proud and said "killed it". I totally lost it....laughed my rear off because he was scared of a little spider. He looked so offended and said he wasn't "scared" they just creep him out. After that I became his spider slayer although I always had to tease him about it. What I would give to continue being your protector! I love you daddy and miss you terribly!

I first met Mike 10 years ago. He helped us out many times, but the biggest favor that he ever did was in December of 2011 when our house caught on fire and he cleaned out his parents house so we'd have a place to stay until our house was fixed. He was a God fearing man and like a big brother to me. I'm going to miss him . But now he's up there with God watching over all of us. R.I.P. Mike you deserve it.
